WHO WE ARE

Hack4Impact is a 501 (c)(3) nonprofit organization (https://hack4impact.org) that prepares university students for the use of technology for social good. Our club gives students the opportunity to build software for nonprofit organizations. By graduation, alumni of the Hack4Impact organization have worked on 2-4 large-scale software projects for nonprofits, gained valuable relationships, and developed their leadership and teamwork skills.

Hack4Impact was founded in 2014 at the University of Pennsylvania, and has since expanded to 10 universities with over 400 active student members. Chapters exist across the United States and Canada, currently at the University of Pennsylvania, Cornell University, Georgia Tech, University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, Boston University, McGill University, University of Michigan, University of Maryland, and University of Tennessee.

OUR CHAPTER

The Cal Poly chapter was founded in 2018 to provide software solutions to San Luis Obispo nonprofits and prepare students to use their knowledge of technology for the greater good. Since our inception, we have developed 6 functional projects for SLO nonprofits. Our goal is to foster a positive environment for all of our members and organizations that we work with. We operate under four pillars to promote our culture:

   I.   Transparency - We want all members of our club to feel comfortable expressing any opinion or idea. We believe that individual problems are group problems.
   II.   Diversity & Inclusivity - We believe that creating technology for social good requires diverse perspectives and experiences, so we are proud to be a multidisciplinary club.
   III. Friendship - We describe ourselves as "A bunch of friends who code." We want to foster positive and supportive relationships within our organization.
   IV.   Trust - We cultivate ongoing relationships with our members and our partner organizations.
